Be choosy when you pick your apples

By SHIRLEY W. WALTON
Extension Agent

Many of you will be traveling to nearby orchards where you can pick your own apples this fall. When doing so, be sure that you are a choosy apple picker.

I wish to share with you some excellent information this week that has been provided to our office by Susan L. Wiley, Marketing Specialist with the Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services. Because some of you have been in our office already asking about apple information and because of the abundant crop in Virginia this year, I will be sharing a good bit of information with you about apples, storage, selection, useage, etc.

When picking apples, be sure that the apple color is bright and vibrant. Make sure the color is appropriate for the variety you are choosing. Don't rely on a pure red color as a guide for quality or a golden color if that is the variety of apple.

Some questions you should ask yourself about the surface texture of the apple are: Does the surface feel smooth and firm? Is the surface free from bruises, blemishes and skin breaks? Do the freckles or tan spots on the apple affect the flavor of the fruit or are they characteristic of some varieties, which they are? If apples will be peeled and cooked, a few bad spots can be cut out of an apple. The surface texture that you choose will be determined by the intended use of the apple.

In determining the ripeness of an apple, the apple should be yellowish green at the stem of the fruit. If the background color is too green, the apple is under-ripe and will be hard. If this area is too yellow, the apple is overripe and the texture will be mealy.

Be sure to buy apples according to their intended use. Each year our office gets many questions about which varieties are best for what uses. According to our best research, we find that the following apples are best for cooking--Rome, York, Winesap and Stayman. The best apples for making salads include: Golden and Red Delicious and Jonathan. Now, which apples do you like best for eating? According to the best information we can find, all apples are great for eating. It depends on whether you like a particular apple and how ripe one with a particular unique flavor such as the York. Remember, all apples are great for eating.

We've had several calls this week and people in the office asking about what to do with an overabundance of apples in the back yard. You may freeze them and have them ready for pies, cobblers and baking. To freeze these apples so that they will not darken, you need to cut the apples up into a quart of water which has had one tablespoon of unIodized salt added to them. This will keep the apples from turning dark while handling. Drain the apples out of the water and put them in a freezer type bag. I suggest measuring the amount so you have just the right amount for a pie or for a cobbler. This will be helpful when you get ready to pull the apples out of the freezer and use them.

If you have a homemaking question or problem, you may call 352-8244 or write P. O. Box 488, Appomattox, VA 24522. It is always a pleasure to hear from you and to help you.

Have a good week!

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Apple Gelatin

1 - 3-oz. package gelatin, any flavor
1 cup boiling water
1/2 cup cold water
Apple apples
Lemon apples

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Stir in cold water and set aside. Core apples leaving bottom of apple intact. Hollow out some of the apple flesh to make room for gelatin. Pour gelatin in apple and place apples in individual bowls to keep them upright. Chill until gelatin is firm. Cut in wedges to serve. Fun for kids, but also makes an attractive garnish for a meat platter. Vary the flavors of gelatin and use both red and yellow apples for a variety of color combinations.
